ACTIVITIES DESCRIPTIONS

General Overview of Alphabet Avenue

Students will use any alphabet activities you want to add. This can be homemade, bought, or purchased. If you have an alphabet set including commercial phonics sets, abc art, sorting, or playdough abc mats, this is the perfect place for them.

General Overview of Big Book Boulevard

Students are given the opportunity to read the Big Books that have been read in a group. The use of pointers and props are perfect for this activity. I try to have 10-12 Books available that we have read together and no more so the students can find things tidy. Helpful hint: store big books that aren't on the easel in a tall laundry access and as a great way to prevent book damage.

General Overview of Book Nook

The Book Nook is your classroom library. The one displayed in the picture has 1 category. You can do this or simply display the books randomly. Add books that current classroom theme, holidays, students' special interests, or the class Big F bean bags and small rocking chairs to this area makes it even more fun.

General Overview of Computer Court

Students work on computers with education websites such as starfall.com, seese, etc. Typing lists are also provided in this rotation and will include names, student addresses and telephone numbers, color words, and sight words. Utilize headphones possible.

General Overview of Drama Depot

Use this station to house your puppets and props that are used in story time. The students are encouraged to act out their own stories or reenact stories from books. They are also taught how to be the actors and the audience members. Homemade sock puppets, cardstock made puppets like the ones pictured below in Crazy Color Creatures, or store purchased puppets are great for the students to use. If you have a puppet stage, I do recommend taking the curtain off so you have easy viewing access to all part of the classroom.

General Overview of Drawing Department

Provide students with a variety of materials including but not limited to markers, crayons, gel pens, and glitter sticks for drawing. Change the materials out after has circulated through the stations. Crayon Melt is also in this station which can be plugged in and turned on low, and covered with aluminum foil. The student white paper and places 2 small pieces of wood to hold it down and allow the student to draw on the blocks while drawing. The heat from the hot plate melts the crayon a smooth painting feeling while drawing. The finished picture has a stained glass look beautiful hanging in the window like my example with Crayon Melt and Car written below. Encourage students to write about their pictures and insist that names on their projects. These pieces are great to display on a brag wall.

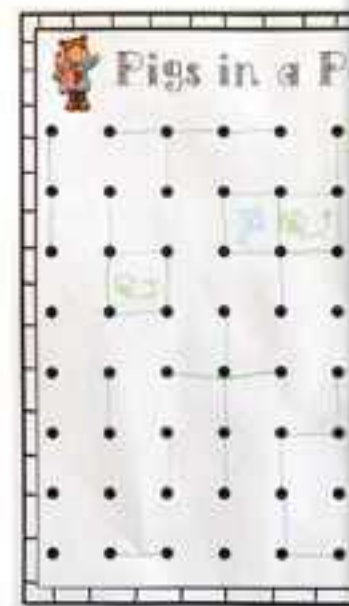

General Overview of Game Garage

Students can play a variety of games including the classic children's board games Chutes and Ladders, Hi-Go Chero, and Guess (Who?, Tic Tac Toe). There are also "bagged board games that are great for the classroom like the Tic Tac Toe below. Teacher made board games or card games are great also. I love Pigs in the Hat (and dots game) and Fishing for Learning for this station.

General Overview of Listening Lane

Any book on tape/CD/mp3 player will do. Teach how to follow along on a digital player while the audio is playing. Make sure all students are trained in using the player. Book Nook, make this a comfortable spot for enjoying a book by having some bean bag chairs, or early childhood sized loveseats.

General Overview of Magnet Mission

Students use magnets to create words and sentences. New lists can be given to include color words, sight words/popcorn words, students' names (first and last), phone numbers, easy to sound out words, word wall words, and alphabet arches.

General Overview of Overhead Drive

Think that overhead is useless these days? Think again! The students love to use the overhead. Magnetic letters, traceable overhead sheets, premade overhead pages from catalogs, etc. are great for students to work with. An easy cooperative learning activity at the beginning of the year is to have partners trace each others' shadows onto the board. One tip- don't let them write on the overhead! Have it project to the dry erase board and have them write on the board with dry erase markers. It can be easily erased where as the overhead is messy.
